

COUNCIL CATCH-UP

Message from Mayor John Dal Broi

Last week Minister for Local Government Gabrielle Upton announced the release of a new Code of Meeting practice.

Among other items, the new Code states that meetings of councils and their committees must be either live-streamed, or recorded and uploaded later.

Initially I was under the impression that this meant Council would have to install web cameras, but upon closer investigation I can report that it can be audio only or audiovisual.

I'm happy to say that Griffith City Council meeting proceedings already meets the minimum future prescribed requirements. We've been recording and uploading Council meetings to the website since August 2017. So, at this stage the status quo will remain.

We may still look at expanding to audiovisual in the future, if the costs to do so are not too prohibitive.

But that's a decision that I'm sure Councilors will not take lightly.

In relation to allowing public forums before ordinary meetings, that is another thing that Griffith Council already has in place. We allow members of the public to address Council during meetings immediately prior to the matter being considered, which we feel is more conducive for Councilors to put their mind to the issues on the agenda so due process and consideration can be given to each agenda item and the attention each item deserves.

We can't be sure exactly when the new code will be prescribed. The Office of Local Government is indicating that it may not be prescribed by the end of the year.

The two documents, the Code of Conduct and the Code of Meeting Practice, will be the major instruments for governance of council conduct and meetings.

The new Code of Conduct clearly sets out behaviours expected of staff and councilors. All of this information will be in one document and includes pecuniary interests, social media activity and gifts and benefits.

Interestingly, Council already practices the newly documented management of gifts and benefits and the mandatory reporting of these.

I'm also glad to hear about the sweeping new measures being introduced to ensure councils are properly managing credit card expenditure.

We have excellent governance processes in place for managing credit card use at Griffith City Council but anything that allows us and all councils to keep a close check on this is a good thing.

Lastly, I must congratulate our hardworking staff for the recent recognition they received for work on the Bagtown Roundabout.

At the Institute of Public Works Engineering Australasia (IPWEA) Engineering Excellence Awards for 2018, Council received a highly commended in the category for design and/or construction of a Local Government/Public Works project greater than $500,000.

This is an example of the excellent work that is being carried out and all those involved should be extremely proud of their efforts.

Regards,
John Dal Broi
Emeritus Mayor

Long road from a broken heart

Griffith residents will have the opportunity to meet an inspiring young man who has proven anything is possible as long as you're willing to take that first step.

Author and adventurer Jeremy Scott will share his courageous story at the Griffith City Library on Thursday, 6 December at 6pm - 8pm.

On 5 October 2011, Jeremy began the challenge of a life time, a two-and-a-half year, and 51,916 km solo bicycle ride from London to New Zealand.

As he pedalled his way around the planet, Jeremy covered more than enough distance to circumnavigate the earth. This phenomenal journey was made possible thanks to the open-heart surgery which saved his life as a child.

Jeremy, pictured below, will be discussing his colossal journey and his new book, 'A Long Road from a Broken Heart'.

"His book includes encounters with corrupt policemen and wild dogs, plagues of rodents, the scamming Filipino Mafia and even finding a dead body," Library Manager Karen Tagliapietra said. "Jeremy is inspiring and the experiences he had while cycling the world are incredible.

"I urge local people to come along and hear from this remarkable man."

Jeremy is the recipient of the Australian Heart Foundation's Heart Hero Award and Ambassador for Waterline Challenge.

Join Griffith City Library as Jeremy launches his new book, which not only details his journey but also his medical condition as a child, photography, mental strength, fitness and travel. Light refreshments will be provided. RSVP by calling the Library on 6962 8300 or online at jeremyscott.eventbrite.com.au

Roundabout work recognised

Griffith City Council has been recognised for its design and construction work on the Bagtown Roundabout.

At the Institute of Public Works Engineering Australasia (IPWEA) Engineering Excellence Awards for 2018, Council received a highly commended in the category for design and/or construction of a Local Government/Public Works project greater than $500,000.

Director Infrastructure and Operations, Phil King, said he was extremely proud to accept the award on behalf of Council.

"This is a whole of Council project, securing the funding, survey, design and construction," Mr King said.

"These awards are particularly competitive, with 105 nominations received in our category alone.

"I want to congratulate everyone involved.

"It's nice to have the professional skills of the team members that worked on it recognised."

Council secured funding in 2016 as part of Fixing Country Roads Round 2 and paired this with an allocation from Roads to Recovery for the $1.85m project.

The Bagtown Roundabout was officially opened to traffic in June 2017 after almost six months of extensive works, creating a safer, more efficient traffic solution to address the five approaches merging at the intersection.

The project was delivered on time and on budget and is the first part of Council's Southern Industrial Link Road.

Council staff undertook all survey and design for works to commence on 16 January 2017. It was jointly funded between the Australian Government and New South Wales Government.

General Manager Brett Stonestreet acknowledged the exceptional work carried out by the Infrastructure and Operations team.

"Congratulations to the team involved with the Bagtown Roundabout.

"It's a great example of the quality of work Griffith City Council produces," Mr Stonestreet said.

IPWEA is an association that supports the delivery of public works and services with many of its members working for local councils, government agencies and consultants.

Yellow bus to stop in Griffith

A big yellow bus will roll into Griffith on Sunday afternoon to drive home an important message.

The man behind the wheel, Col Reynolds, founded The Kids' Cancer project in 1993 in an effort to fund research into childhood cancer.

Mr Reynolds is particularly happy to be coming to Griffith, the hometown of the little girl who first inspired the project, Alice Sjollem, who died of leukemia when she was six.

"I met Alice when she was in Sydney having treatment. I used to take Alice and others on outings, it took a while for her to warm to me, but eventually she took a shine to me. When she died it burst my heart," Mr Reynolds said.

"My goal is to eliminate cancer. I'm on the road to tell people that science is the solution to survival.

"My main aim is to bring awareness of the need for childhood cancer research.

"We've had the bus donated to us by a bus company and Caltex provides the fuel so we can get out into rural areas free of charge and raise awareness."

Keep an eye out for Mr Reynolds and his bus parked in the middle block of Banna Avenue on Sunday, 25 November from 1pm and all day on Monday, 26 November. To date the Kids' Cancer Project has funded $40 million in cancer research for 27 scientists in 14 different laboratories throughout Australia.

Mr Reynolds is inviting locals to drop down to the bus to find out more about the project. He will be selling teddy bears for the reduced price of $40, with proceeds going towards the Kids' Cancer Project.

"I loved Alice so much we've created an Alice Angel Bear," he said.

"She is the little girl who started it all."
